

SHAKESPEARE.
King Henry the Eighth.
ACT III. SCENE I.
The Banquet room of King Henry the Eighth at Whitehall. Enter King Henry the Eighth, Cardinal Beaufort, and other Lords.
Beaufort. My Lord, the Cardinal is come to see you.
King. He is welcome. Let him come. (Exit Beaufort.)
King. I have been thinking of late, how much I have to answer for to God and man.
Cardinal. Your Majesty is a good man, and your conscience is clear.
King. I hope so. But I have been thinking of late, how much I have to answer for to God and man.
Cardinal. Your Majesty is a good man, and your conscience is clear.
King. I hope so. But I have been thinking of late, how much I have to answer for to God and man.
Cardinal. Your Majesty is a good man, and your conscience is clear.
