

Engraved by Raphael Beut

166. What's in that white flag? I'll see it with my eyes,
And hold up both with my outstretched arms.
I'll catch it up, and hold it up to the sun,
That I may see the face of him that's dead.
The white flag's up, and he's dead.

ACT IV. SCENE III.

A forest. Orlando and Oliver.

1667. Printed by J. B. ROSS, No. 10, Chancery Lane, London.

The opening of the mouth, but not the heart, is the seat of wisdom. The heart is the seat of wisdom, but the mouth is the seat of wisdom. The
heart is the seat of wisdom, but the mouth is the seat of wisdom. The
heart is the seat of wisdom, but the mouth is the seat of wisdom.
